We all hate being treated as if we do not know what is best for us, like we're younger than we really are, or just not getting our way because our parents treat us like children.

1. Never fight with your parents. They might say something...
2. Never straight out disobey them. If you feel your parents are being too harsh,...
3. Be assertive. If you need something from your parents ...
4. Show them that you're responsible. Do your chores ...
5. Reassure your parent you're still a loving son or daughter. Reminding them...
6. Be respectful. The hallmark of a mature individual is respect. Don't ...
7. Act ...
8. Analyze your behavior, your reactions...
9. You will see very quickly that you can earn more respect, and faster,...
10. If you're whining, bickering with your siblings, constantly asking for help for something you can do yourself, dressing young, and so on, ...

- A. ... your age.
- B. ... ask why. They may actually have a good reason.
- C. ... you'll be treated as a younger person.
- D. ...without being asked, keep your bedroom tidy, do things that your parents don't expect you to do.
- E. by simply working toward it than you can force them to give it to you.
- F. talk back, whine, or pout to your parents. Listen to your grandfather's favorite stories instead of rolling your eyes.
- G. ... that you disagree with or don't like, but don't get into a full out fight, debate calmly.
- H. ... to their requests and demands, and make adjustments.
- I. ... you still love them will ease tensions.
- J. ... or you want to tell them about something they do that you don't like, you have to be controlled. Never yell or get emotional.
